FOREWORD

With the issuance of this directory of local renewal agencies or agencies administering urban renewal programs, NAHRO departs from its traditional method of directory publication under which housing, renewal, and codes agencies have all been incorporated in a single directory volume. Two additional volumes supplement this directory: a volume listing local public housing agencies and a volume listing local housing code enforcement agencies.

This method of directory publication — in three separate volumes — is an experiment. Over the next year or two, NAHRO members will have the opportunity to make a comparison of two alternative methods of supplying this information and to test out in actual practical use which one most nearly meets their needs or, perhaps, to get a clear picture of yet another publication formula that will refine and improve on both of these methods.

In addition to publishing a separate directory for urban renewal, NAHRO has made another departure from past practices with this publication. It has added and rearranged information to make this publication particularly useful to readers who want to compare the size and scope of the overall renewal program in their communities with size and scope of the program in comparable sized communities. Such new information as the administrative budget, the size of each project activity by acreage, the population of the area served, and the scope of the different projects reveal the range of possibilities for renewal agencies of all sizes. Also included, of course, are the names of the key officials, as well as the address and telephone number of each agency.

NAHRO began collecting data for the renewal directory in January 1969 through a questionnaire sent to all local renewal agencies known to the Association on December 31, 1968. Information in this publication was taken from responses to the questionnaire except for those entries marked "Unconfirmed by Agency." In instances where agencies did not respond to the questionnaire, NAHRO sought information from the best sources available, usually in the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

To the many local renewal agencies that responded to the directory questionnaire, NAHRO expresses its warmest thanks. Questionnaire forms mailed out were long and complex; they took a good deal of time to complete and the Association is grateful for the care and attention that was obviously given to filling them out, notwithstanding the busy work schedules they interrupted.

The painstaking task of proofreading each line of each entry was handled by Miss Karen Leake, NAHRO Directory Assistant. The entire directory manuscript was typed in both draft and final form by Mrs. Florence Gray. NAHRO Membership Secretary Francis Phelps supervised the collection of Directory information and the preparation of each entry. Frank Milwee, NAHRO Assistant Director for Administrative Services, oversaw the production and printing of the volume. Mrs. Dorothy Gazzolo, NAHRO Deputy Executive Director.

INTRODUCTION AND EXPLANATORY NOTES

This book identifies and provides information about agencies that administer urban renewal programs.

Information contained in most listings are interpretative extractions of data from questionnaires completed by the agencies concerned. However, when questionnaires were not returned, listings were compiled from whatever sources were available. These entries are marked "unconfirmed by agency".

Careful attention to each city listing will enable the user of this book to interpret the renewal programs being carried out in the city to which an entry relates. The reader will also be able to satisfy many questions about what resources the agency is employing to do its work.

A careful reading of the next five pages will provide the key to the use of this directory.

1. NAHRO file number
2. This digit of the file number is a function code. The "2" in this position indicates that the agency administers a renewal program only. The figure "0" indicates that the agency has responsibility for administering both a housing and a renewal program.

3. Name of city
4. Name of agency
5. Mailing address of agency
6. Zip code for mailing address of agency
7. Telephone area code/telephone number
